Dr. Reem Hajjar on Researching Forestry [00:00-34:51]

Research in Action - Episode 126

Podcast and Episode Information

“Research in Action” is a weekly podcast about topics and issues related to research in higher education featuring experts across a range of disciplines.

On this episode of the podcast, the guest is Dr. Reem Hajjar, an Assistant Professor of Integrated Human and Ecological Systems in the Department of Forest Ecosystems and Society at Oregon State University. She is an interdisciplinary social scientist, and studies the relationship between forests and livelihoods, and how various governance mechanisms and institutions (policies, norms, and markets) shape that relationship. Most of her work to-date has taken place in tropical and sub-tropical forests, with a recent extension into the Pacific Northwest of North America. Most recently, she's been working on projects related to community-based forest management in Mexico, global reviews on community forestry and small-scale forest enterprises, gendered impacts of land grabs in Ethiopia, impacts of forest policy changes in Ghana, and cattle sector certification in Brazil.

Segment One [00:00-17:03] - In this segment, Reem describes the discipline of forestry.

Segment Two [17:04-34:51] - In this segment, Reem shares about her international research and when she decides to expand to a new research site.

Bonus Clip #1 [00:00-04:38]: Learning Multiple Languages

Bonus Clip #2: [00:00-05:41]: Extractive vs. Relational Research
